

This article is a stub. You can help the Foresight Wiki by expanding it.

Causal Layered Analysis -- or 'post-structuralism as method' -- is a method which asks a series of questions that dig down through levels of information and understanding and communication about issues and the future, from the conversational and everyday, to technological and systems explanations, to worldviews and mental models, down to deep cultural myths and metaphors.